DOGGED DETERMINATION

Warrior dogs weren't bred to make their living tracking household dogs to leave the same level of discipline as their military counterparts.

It's not every day that you see a dog in a military uniform, but you can see a dog in a military uniform if you know where to look.

They're called "warrior dogs" and they're used in a variety of ways by the military, from tracking down enemy soldiers to sniffing out explosives.

But what makes a dog a warrior dog? Is it just the breed? Or is it the training? And what about the dog's personality? Can a dog be trained to be a warrior dog if it's not naturally inclined to be one?

These are the questions that we'll be exploring in this article. We'll look at the different breeds of warrior dogs and the training they receive. We'll also discuss the role of the dog's personality in determining whether or not a dog is a warrior dog.
